Society Member Irv Lipscomb provided the photo above and said he never recalled seeing a SAL Alco RS-3 painted in the jolly green giant paint scheme. Your editor doesn't recall this paint scheme either, but it sure looks good. The engine belongs to the Florida Railroad Museum at Parrish. Running soon???

This Is The Way It Was

This monthly photo column by Ken Murdock features railroad scenes of the past, a look back into railroading's history.

This early 1940s photo finds ACL #807 extra, an M-S class 2-8-2 Mikado, running west bound (RR south) and switching customer's sidings in Plant City. Built with D-slide valves by Baldwin in 1911, she was later superheated and provided with modern piston valves using the same cylinders. Boiler pressure was increased from 185 to 200 psi which then provided a tractive effort of 43,690 pounds. Sam Appleby photo,

This photo, also from the early 1940s, captures sister ACL #810 M-S class extra crossing the SAL diamond east bound (RR north) in Plant City. The SAL tracks cross between the two towers and the tower farthest away was on the top of Plant City Union Station and was later removed. The closest tower was moved across the tracks to the north side of Union Station. Sam Appleby photo, CFRHS collection

Here is more action at Plant City with SAL #865 P class 4-6-2 Streamlined Pacific stopped at Union Station with the Silver Meteor. The train is across the diamond of the ACL main line and the locomotive is beginning its curve to the west to continue its short run to Tampa Union Station. The SAL streamlined three of these Pacifics to handle the expanded west coast Meteor service from Wildwood due to the backlog of diesel orders. Sam Appleby photo, CFRHS collection

November 2015 Museum Report

By Ken Murdock, Museum Curator

I'm pleased to report that our monthly museum workday on November 7, 2015 was an outstanding success with 9 members participating who included Phil Cross, Allen Quinn, Lloyd Brown, Ross Marvin, Joe Lehmann, Irv Lipscomb, Jerry and Ginger Honetor and your curator.

The morning started out with Jerry and Ginger meeting me at Tom Langford's home in Orlando to pick up a very nice donation which required Jerry's pickup truck. Tom's donation included a 6' long wood and glass display case with two glass shelves, a Seaboard Air Line Conductor's hat with a brass badge, one Pennsylvania RR and one Great Northern RR brass switch lock keys, a complete set of Pennsylvania RR passes from 1918 to 1951, two Canadian Pacific RR commemorative porcelain plates and 74 VHS RR tapes. My son, Craig, met us at Tom's place to help load the display case since four were needed to move the monster. The plates, in their original boxes, will be sold in our gift shop.

Meanwhile, back at the museum, Phil, Allen and Lloyd were busy taking care of cleaning up around the outside and taking care of the much needed housekeeping chores inside. Ross is setting us up as a store on eBay and he will be selling many of our items that are now in storage. Ross and Irv started working to identify items for sale and get them ready to sell. Many of these items having been in storage in the Roper Building are very dusty and needed to be cleaned before they can be photographed and listed.

Joe worked on solving my printer problems and I now have two printers working again. Without printers, I can't make inventory labels or signs explaining about the displayed items, which basically stops many of the things I do on Wednesdays.

After finishing his housekeeping chores, Allen installed LED bulbs in another chandelier in the front room and put the donated VHS tapes in storage in the new office in the Roper Building. Lloyd, Phil and I moved the Gift Shop shelf unit from the Operator's Office to the wall behind the host's desk as requested by David Rhea. We also moved the pigeon hole form storage unit back into the Operator's Office and filled it with railroad forms and a few Official Guides to give the room a more authentic appearance. Lloyd and I made a concerted effort to clean up the room which had gotten quite messy. It now looks much better. Jerry continued with his eternal job of working on inventory in the library and Ginger helped with the house cleaning chores before hosting in the afternoon.

Jerry, Ginger and I continued our Wednesday workdays throughout the month and Ginger hosted on Wednesday afternoons. Al Sharp returned from North Carolina and re-joined our Wednesday inventory workdays once again. Al worked on inventory and I encapsulated a number of our large format items, such as maps, between two layers of archival grade acetate, thus making them bug proof and easy to handle without fear of tearing or damaging the items. I have also been putting weather-stripping around the front opening showcase doors to make them more dust proof.

Thanks to each of you who came out to work or hosted and helped to make this another great month of progress for our museum.
